Details:

Dr. Anton Helazu, Head of the Research Department at Yanka Kupala University in Gordon, Belarus, delivered an inspiring guest lecture on research and development in the pharmaceutical field. His insightful presentation engaged and motivated our students to explore the exciting world of research. Dr. Helazu shared valuable insights into cutting-edge advancements and emerging trends within the pharmaceutical industry, encouraging students to consider research as a rewarding career path. His expertise and enthusiasm left a lasting impact, igniting a passion for research within our student body. His motivational words ignited a spark of curiosity and ambition, leaving a lasting impact on our budding researchers, who are now inspired to contribute to the advancement of pharmaceutical science. He also visited the campus and truly amazed by SIPS' facilities which are exceptional, with modern classrooms equipped with the latest technology, well-stocked libraries, advanced laboratories, and recreational areas. The commitment to providing quality education is evident in the resources and amenities available to students. We are grateful for Dr. Helazu's valuable contribution to our academic community and look forward to more such enriching interactions.
